Numerous training thunderstorms developed along a warm front over the lower Ohio Valley. The flash flooding produced by these thunderstorms caused numerous road closures over south central Indiana, including US and state highways. A bridge was washed out at English, and Caesar's Riverboat Casino in Harrison County was forced to close for the day.

A warm front over the lower Ohio Valley produced numerous training thunderstorms over north central Kentucky during the morning and early afternoon. A cold front brought more heavy rain to north central and east central Kentucky during the afternoon and evening. These thunderstorms produced rainfall amounts averaging from two to five inches. Numerous roads were closed over the area, including US and state highways, and cars were stranded in some areas.
